China, Japan and South Korea held a joint summit with the Association of Southeast Asia Nations (ASEAN) on Monday.

Chinese Premier Li Qiang, South Korean President Lee Jae Myung, Japanese Foreign Minister Toshimitsu Motegi and Malaysian Prime Minister Anwar Ibrahim, the ASEAN chair, attended the ASEAN Plus Three summit.

Lee called on South Korea, China and Japan to step up cooperation under the ASEAN+3 framework, with ASEAN to better respond to emerging "geoeconomic challenges," including trade protectionism and shifting global supply chains, according to Yonhap news.
