Caliber (4 November 2025)

The potential return of Armenians who left Karabakh may pose a threat to the peace established between Baku and Yerevan, Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan has stated.

He made the remarks during his speech at the International Forum Building Peace and Multilateral Cooperation held in Yerevan, Caliber.Az reports, citing Armenian media.

I consider the agenda of the return of our displaced sisters and brothers from Nagorno-Karabakh [the Karabakh region of Azerbaijan □ ed.] a risk to peace. And I also said that this topic is generally dangerous because it means returning to the original parameters of the conflict, Pashinyan noted.
