The Reconstruction and Development Coalition headed by Prime Minister Mohammed Shia al-Sudani took a strong lead in Iraqs parliamentary elections in the capital Baghdad, the electoral commission said Wednesday.

Preliminary results announced by the commission showed that al-Sudans coalition got 411,026 votes, out of more than 4 million voters, followed by the Progress Party, led by former Parliament Speaker Mohammed al-Halbousi, and the State of Law Coalition, headed by former Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki.
