Observers from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) suspended ceasefire verification at the Cambodia-Thailand border on Wednesday after an explosion on the Thai side, said the Cambodian Information Ministry.

The ASEAN Observers Team was busy inspecting and verifying the implementation of the ceasefire at Checkpoint CH1 in Thmorda Commune, Veal Veng district, Pursat province.

"During the inspection, there was the sound of weapon explosions on the Thai side. For safety reasons, the ASEAN Observers Team decided to suspend the verification mission in that area and withdraw," it added.
