Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan has expressed optimism about advancing the normalization of relations with Türkiye following the release of the TRIPP Implementation Framework by Yerevan and Washington.

Speaking at the AIISA Security Forum titled Armenia and Peace: At the Intersection of Risks and Opportunities, Pashinyan said it would be logical for the next developments to take place in the Armenia-Türkiye dimension, News.Az reports, citing Armenian media.

He noted that political dialogue between the sides has already addressed key issues and expressed hope that this progress would now be reflected on the ground.
