On Armenia's 34th Army Day, PM Nikol Pashinyan declared that peace with Azerbaijan is established, yet emphasised the necessity of robust defensive capabilities and ongoing military reforms.

The anniversary of the Armed Forces typically celebrated on 28 January, Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan delivered a dual message of diplomatic reconciliation and strategic deterrence, emphasising that while the era of active conflict with Baku has ended, Yerevan's defence capabilities must remain robust and modern.

Writing on social media to mark the national holiday, Prime Minister Pashinyan highlighted the transformation of the Armenian military following the turbulent years of the early 2020s.
