Kazakhstan has officially assumed the chairmanship of the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia for 2026, following the annual consultative meeting of the treaty's member states.

Representatives of the Kazakh Ministry of Foreign Affairs took part in the meeting, where participating countries reviewed activities carried out in 2025 and outlined plans for the year ahead.

Discussions also focused on strengthening coordination among Central Asian states within the framework of the United Nations, reported the ministry's press service on Jan. 30.
