Greek Prime Minister Kyriakos Mitsotakis told local media that the dispute over the Aegean and the Eastern Mediterranean stands out as an obstacle in advancing Greek-Turkish ties and threatens the prevalence of Türkiye's exclusion from EU funds.

Mitsotakis' remarks came ahead of a planned visit to Türkiye, where he is expected to meet President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan.

The dispute he referred to is about maritime delimitation in the two bodies of water where sovereignty and economic benefits for Türkiye are at stake.
