We will not act against Russia, but will always act in Armenias interests. That is our strategy, Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan said in an interview with Public Television. He stressed that Yerevan conveys the same message to its international partners: There has been, is not, and will not be any intention in our agenda to harm Russia or Russian interests.

Mr Pashinyan said problems can arise but can also be resolved, adding that the Armenian authorities are ready for open dialogue. He pointed to the Washington agreements of 8 August 2025 and Moscows concerns in that context. The prime minister said Armenia had previously presented Russia with a proposal similar to the Trump Route.

We only needed five words. Those words are territorial integrity, sovereignty, jurisdiction, reciprocity and the inviolability of borders. We said: write these five words on paper, and I am ready to sign that document at any time. And there is no exaggeration in what I say.
