From Paris to Berlin, party leaders face the uncomfortable choice of whether to back American and Israeli bombing — or remain faithful to their sovereignty-first principles.

The U.S. and Israeli bombing of Iran is exposing a fault line at the heart of Europe's far right.

Across the continent, leaders aligned with the MAGA agenda are being forced to choose between their anti-interventionist instincts and embracing an offensive against an Islamist regime they have long cast as a threat to Western security.
