Slovenias Prime Minister Robert Golob tells POLITICO that his right-wing election rival Janez Janša wants to break up the European Union.

Dont just focus on Hungary's election, Slovenia really matters too.

Prime Minister Robert Golob underlined the high stakes facing Europe during an interview with POLITICO ahead of two critical votes. First, in Slovenia on March 22, where Golobs left-liberal coalition is straining to fend off a confrontational right-wing contender; then, in Hungary on April 12, where an anti-corruption candidate is on track to oust longtime nationalist leader Viktor Orbán.
