The Government of Moldova has decided to denounce three main agreements of the CIS, including the founding agreement and the charter. In this regard, the government press service emphasized that "this decision is related to the violation by the Russian Federation of key values and principles of the community, within which states must respect each other's territorial integrity and inviolability of borders."

Moreover, this decision "reflects the new strategic priorities" of Moldova as a candidate for EU membership. Exiting the CIS will also allow the country to save 3.1 million lei ($172.8 thousand) annually from the state budget, the government added.

It should be noted that Moldova has not participated in CIS meetings since 2022. [...]
