President of Azerbaijan Ilham Aliyev opened the XIII Global Baku Forum held at the Gulistan Palace under his patronage and organized by the Nizami Ganjavi International Center, addressing global security challenges, regional connectivity, and the peace process with Armenia.

Speaking at the opening ceremony, the Azerbaijani president described the Nizami Ganjavi International Center as one of the leading international platforms for global dialogue, noting that it has earned strong international recognition for discussing major global issues and shaping approaches to the changing international environment.

Aliyev emphasized that global conflicts continue to disrupt traditional transportation routes and create serious problems for countries and economies worldwide.
