The European Union will prepare a support program for Armenia in response to Russias trade restrictions, EU foreign policy chief Kaja Kallas said during a press conference in Luxembourg following a meeting of EU foreign ministers and talks with Armenian Foreign Minister Ararat Mirzoyan, Factor.am reported.

Kallas noted that last weeks parliamentary elections in Armenia sent a clear message.

The Armenian people voted for peace, sovereignty, and closer ties with Europe. Russias heavy pressure and economic coercion failed to influence the vote, she said.
