US President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping began closed-door bilateral talks at the White House on Thursday, with security, trade and technology among the issues on the agenda.

The meeting followed a military welcome ceremony that included a flyover by a B-2 stealth bomber and fighter jets believed to be F-22s, while a military band played and US and Chinese flags were displayed in alternating order.

US first lady Melania Trump and her Chinese counterpart, Peng Liyuan, also joined the two leaders in the Oval Office.
