
'DAYTON ACCORDS MADE BOSNIA DYSFUNCTIONAL'

- 05.02.2012

Beta, Balkan Insight, 5 February 2012 Former Croat President Stjepan Mesić has assessed that the Dayton Accords needs to be changed so Bosnia-Herzegovina could become a functional state.

□□□□ way that it is, Bosnia-Herzegovina is simply dysfunctional and it will stay that way as long as it is structured in accordance with the Dayton Accords and until we stop treating the agreement as a □□□□ cow, A he wrote in an article published in Novi Sad-based daily Dnevnik. According to him, Bosnia-Herzegovina is still a □□□□ spot A of the region. □□□□ Dayton Accords was the only and life-saving solution when it was reached but today it is a burden that the entire Bosnia-Herzegovina is struggling under, A Mesić pointed out. He explained that the Dayton Agreement today was for some □□□□ a buffet from which they only take what they like and they forget about the rest A and for others who openly wish the country would collapse □□ smokescreen to hind behind A□ The former Croat president stressed that a united and functional Bosnia-Herzegovina was of key importance for a long-term stability in the region. □□ have not noticed that the meeting on Mt. Jahorina made any progress in that context," he concluded.
