Europeans might like it or not, but if Turkey had not defeated Haftar militarily, this positive evolution would have been impossible.

Visiting Libya with his German and Italian counterparts, Jean-Yves Le Drian, French minister of foreign affairs, stressed that Europeans were pleased to see "efforts bear(ing) fruit * meetings in Paris and Palermo, and a conference in Berlin * and today we are seeing the first results."

These words echoed what EU foreign affairs high representative Josep Borrell said in February: "Since the Berlin Conference", Libya has made significant progress toward "securing lasting peace and stability".
