A source in the North Oil Company (NOC) revealed on Wednesday that repairs to the Iraq-Turkey oil pipeline have been completed.

The governments directives to restart oil exports from the Kirkuk oilfields to the Turkish port of Ceyhan determine how oil pumping operations would proceed, according to Shafaq News.

After ISIS militants destroyed the Iraqi-Turkish oil pipeline, the NOC finished the required work to rebuild it. In particular, the operation involved repairing the damaged parts between the governorates of Nineveh, Salah Al-Din, and Kirkuk.
